Week 14 Vocabulary: Sight words, plural changes, and academic vocabulary calico — A calico is a type of cloth or a cat with a mix of white and other colored patches.

November — November is the eleventh month of the year.
library — A library is a place where people borrow books, use computers, and read or study.
hospital — A hospital is a place where sick or injured people get medical care from doctors and nurses.
restaurant — A restaurant is a place where people pay to eat meals cooked by others.
clinic — A clinic is a smaller medical place where people go for checkups, shots, or minor treatment.
student — A student is someone who goes to school to learn.
human — A human is a person — a member of the species that walks on two legs, thinks, and talks.
shelf — A shelf is a flat board fixed to a wall or inside a cupboard where you put things.
shelves — Shelves are more than one shelf (several flat boards used to hold things).
alumnus — An alumnus is a man or woman that graduated from a school or college.
alumni — Alumni are multiple people (men and/or women) who graduated from a school or college.
cactus — A cactus is a plant that usually grows in dry places, has thick stems, and often sharp spines.
Cacti - more than one cactus (several of these spiny, dry-land plants).
nucleus — A nucleus is the central part of a cell that holds most of a cell's instructions (DNA).
Nuclei - more than one nucleus (several cell centers).
stomach — The stomach is an organ in the body where food goes after you swallow and starts being broken down.
esophagus — The esophagus is the tube that carries food from your mouth down to your stomach.
digestive — Digestive describes the system or process that breaks food into smaller parts your body can use.
intestine — The intestine is the long tube after the stomach where food is further broken down and nutrients are absorbed.

Week 14 Vocabulary: Sight words, plural changes, and academic vocabulary

calico — A calico is a type of cloth or a cat with a mix of white and other colored patches.
November — November is the eleventh month of the year.
library — A library is a place where people borrow books, use computers, and read or study.
hospital — A hospital is a place where sick or injured people get medical care from doctors and nurses.
restaurant — A restaurant is a place where people pay to eat meals cooked by others.
clinic — A clinic is a smaller medical place where people go for checkups, shots, or minor treatment.
student — A student is someone who goes to school to learn.
human — A human is a person — a member of the species that walks on two legs, thinks, and talks.
shelf — A shelf is a flat board fixed to a wall or inside a cupboard where you put things.
shelves — Shelves are more than one shelf (several flat boards used to hold things).
alumnus — An alumnus is a man or woman that graduated from a school or college.
alumni — Alumni are multiple people (men and/or women) who graduated from a school or college.
cactus — A cactus is a plant that usually grows in dry places, has thick stems, and often sharp spines.
Cacti - more than one cactus (several of these spiny, dry-land plants).
nucleus — A nucleus is the central part of a cell that holds most of a cell's instructions (DNA).
Nuclei - more than one nucleus (several cell centers).
stomach — The stomach is an organ in the body where food goes after you swallow and starts being broken down.
esophagus — The esophagus is the tube that carries food from your mouth down to your stomach.
digestive — Digestive describes the system or process that breaks food into smaller parts your body can use.
intestine — The intestine is the long tube after the stomach where food is further broken down and nutrients are absorbed.